

This is a detailed cadastral map of a city block in São Paulo, Brazil. The map features a large, irregularly shaped area highlighted in yellow, which appears to be a specific plot or a group of plots. This yellow area is situated in the upper-left portion of the map, extending diagonally towards the center. The rest of the map is filled with a dense grid of streets and property boundaries. Each street is labeled with its name, often followed by a number or a suffix (e.g., 'RUA DA LARANJEIRA', 'RUA DO COMÉRCIO'). The map also includes a coordinate grid, with latitude and longitude coordinates marked along the edges. The overall layout suggests a formal urban planning or land ownership record.
